SANTA BARBARA PUBLISHER WINS HONORABLE MENTION, HOLLYWOOD BOOK FESTIVAL

Awards to be presented Thursday, July 9, 2009 at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel

SANTA BARBARA, CA., July 6 — Clifton Edwin Publishing, a small press in Santa Barbara, has announced an award for its recently released historical novel, Untarnished

Reputation, by Santa Barbara county author Terry Row. The book, which received First Honorable Mention in the Genre category, is a tall tale of the Old West that seeks to explain the mysteries of the well-known Hunters Hot Springs photograph, purported to be a group portrait of fifteen men including Theodore Roosevelt, Wyatt Earp, Virgil Earp, Doc Holliday, Butch Cassidy, The Sundance Kid, Liver Eating Johnson and others, taken on the steps of a hotel in 1886 Montana.

The awards ceremony will be held at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel, the home of the original Academy Awards in 1929. Coincidentally, the hotel, built in 1927, was named after Theodore Roosevelt, the principal character of the book.

The 2009 Hollywood Book Festival is an annual program celebrating books that deserve greater recognition from the film, television, game and multimedia communities. Based in the capital of show business, the Hollywood Book Festival aims to spotlight literature worthy of further consideration by the talent-hungry pipeline of the entertainment industry.

Terry Row began professional life as a musician. An outstanding oboe player, he attended the Juilliard School and the California Institute of the Arts. Early in his career, he performed throughout the United States and Europe in orchestras, chamber ensembles, and as a soloist. He made a dozen recordings and toured North America during five years as a member of the Los Angeles Chamber Orchestra. At the age of thirty, he chose a new direction for his life, returning to school and becoming a computer consultant and expert on relational database design, living and working in San Francisco, San Jose, and Los Angeles. Now living in Santa Barbara, he remains a lifelong avocationist, pursuing independent studies in writing, literature, poetry, bookbinding, history, cinema, photography, music, travel, eclipse-chasing, astronomy, chess, numismatics, gardening, and bird watching. His first book, Summer Capricorn, was published in 2006.

Established in 2003, Clifton Edwin Publishing plans to release additional titles by Terry Row in the future, including Urgent That You Contact, a thriller mystery about a computer forensics expert who seems to be receiving messages from the other side, Phyllis Marie, a novel based on the true story of the author's parents—a World War II bomber pilot and his wife, after whom he named his B-17—and An Absence of Doves, a thriller mystery about a gruesome series of murders in modern day Los Angeles and the detective who tries to solve it.
